

What happens when an artist decides to drop all professional work to follow a calling? Maleonn, a Shanghai based former advertising director made up his mind 4 years ago. He was tired of trying to fit in, tired of catering to other peoples needs. Putting all practicality and financial security aside, he decided to pursue his desire in creating experimental photography, and the results speak for themselves. Portraying a very theatrical and often very abstract style, his work is highly emotional and attention catching and has gotten him recognition in many corners of the world... <http://scoute.org/issue/july/photography/>

© Maleonn