

Date: Mon, Feb 8, 1999, 11:13 AM

Hello Pedro -

I found your "self portrait" comments and your own eye view of yourself quite interesting. You certainly make a good point. It occurred to me some time past that one could present other kinds of self documentation as well - the dentist's images of your teeth or some other medical images that are unique to the individual person. While a rather macabre thought, one might even consider the methods of portraying the identity of a deteriorated body. Such reconstructed information constitutes yet another form of "portrait"...

You might find my "self portrait " of your computer as a "Universal Turing Machine" interesting....

<http://www.verostko.com/u.html>

Meanwhile ...keep on with your challenging work..Roman

Written by Roman Verostko

---

-----

-----

Roman Verostko

Minneapolis, USA