I can't comment on the sight yet, since this my first visit. However, if it is anything like Pedro Meyer's work, I'll be back many times.

For your information, I am a retired engineer, advanced amateur photographer, and a competent Photoshopper. I retired from my left brain activities in engineering and have started to revive my right brain with photography and digital art work. I've got a long way to go. The left side of the brain is a tough character. I'll be stopping by this site many times for information and inspiration.

Pedro, if you read this, I'm the Joe who got you to autograph your book last night. Enjoyed your lecture and discussion very much. I only wish we could get more photographers to break out of the frame and start thinking in new ways. I'll pass the work at my photo club, but they are, for the most part, set in their ways and don't want to break out.
