We should not forget that every television image and every news photograph coming out of Gaza right now is filtered through Hamas. The photographers filing pictures for Reuters, Associated Press, and Agence France Presse are all Palestinians, and all propagandists for Hamas—or they wouldn't be allowed to take pictures in Gaza.

With that in mind, here's yet another example of news photographs staged for propaganda purposes by terrorists and their allies: CAMERA Snapshots: Green Helmet's Successor?

Photo from a video of a child being taken to a hospital in Gaza. The child is being held by a man. The child has visible injuries, including a bloody forehead, a bloody nose, and large, bloody abrasions on their legs and arms. The child is wearing a green and orange striped shirt. The background is dark and indistinct, suggesting an indoor setting.

are being used as evidence in the Gaza Inquiry. The Gaza Inquiry is a fact-finding mission led by the UN Human Rights Council. The inquiry is currently in its early stages and is expected to release its findings in the coming months. The inquiry is a crucial step in holding those responsible for the violence in Gaza accountable.
