

“Movies are life without the boring parts”

Alfred Hitchcock

Moblogs (Mobile + Weblogs) demand to be published in chronological order, thus making photographs a symbolic set that is much more important and congruent than if the same pictures were to be put in a photo album, with a previous arbitrary selection.

In experimenting with the constant publishing of family pictures in a moblog –something only possible through cell-phones with a camera- I discovered that this apparently innocuous organization feature – a picture follows another, and the latest is the first that is seen published- was giving away a secret to me.

After 10 months of sending pictures every day to Textamerica (a rate of approximately 6.5 photos per day) I realized that I am making neither an album nor a web log, not even a moblog; I am making a map.

Albums

Historically, family photos have been kept in albums (including all the places where images could be stored, such as notebooks, folders, organizers, blank sheets of paper) for family remembrance or posterity.

The photographic rhythm is marked by meaningful events: Marriages, births, birthdays, trips, homecomings, graduations, visits from relatives... These situations offer opportunities for capturing relevant moments that later will be milestones in the family's history.

These images will end up grouped in the family 's photo album.

This is a photograph of two children in a yard in front of a house. The child on the left is a young girl in a light-colored dress, and the child on the right is a taller child in a dark jumpsuit. A porch with a decorative pillar is visible in the background.

Written by Julian Gallo

2 Minutos
después

4 / 8

Moblogs : The Map of Time

Written by Julian Gallo

Moblogs : The Map of Time

Written by Julian Gallo

While walking in the mall, I saw a child from a distance before the telephone, where we go shopping!

Click Here for More Image Options

Posted on 4/30/2004 3:43:11 AM | Comments (0)

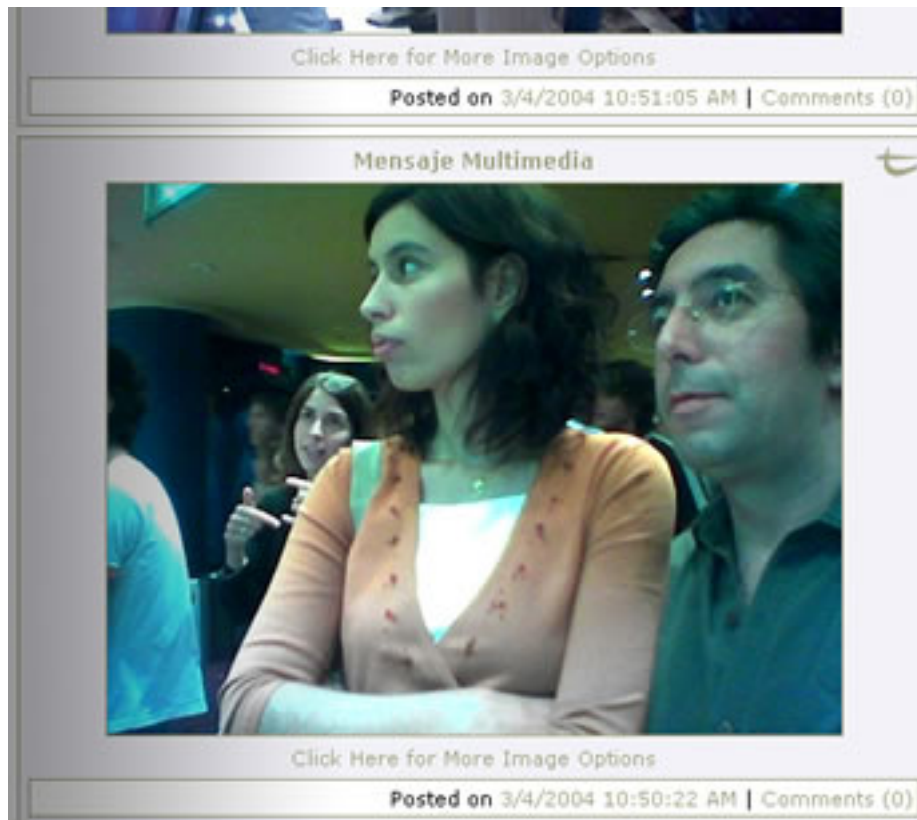

Mensaje Multimedia

While walking in the mall, I saw a child from a distance before the telephone, where we go shopping!

Moblogs : The Map of Time

Written by Julian Gallo

The Moblog is a collection of images and text that are automatically generated from a mobile phone. The Moblog is a collection of images and text that are automatically generated from a mobile phone. The Moblog is a collection of images and text that are automatically generated from a mobile phone.

LOOK AT ME

ALBUM INDEX

ABOUT LOOK AT ME

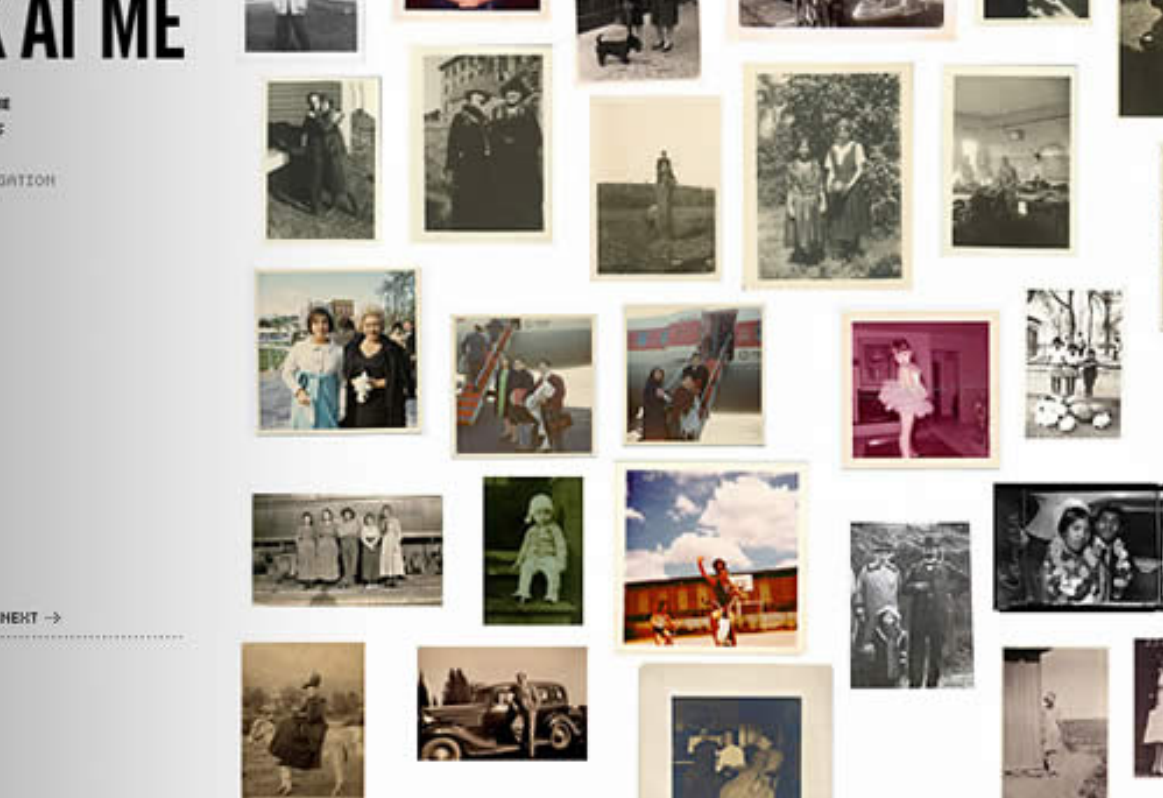

SUBMIT PICTURES

QUICK NAVIGATION

← PREVIOUS

NEXT →

{ 301-330 }

© la modern assoc

<https://www.2019pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2019/08/01/what-is-the-most-trusted-news-source-in-the-u-s/> Journalism of the San