

Photographer who founded a group to preserve brother's legacy,

dies at 90

Cornel Capa, a globetrotting photojournalist who founded the International Center of Photography in New York and dedicated himself to preserving the legacy of his older brother, war photographer Robert Capa, died of Parkinson's disease May 23, at his home in New York. He was 90.

<http://zonezero.com/magazine/obituaries/capacornell/index.html>